The Smallest Baby
What Sort of Keynote?
Small, Surprised Terrier
We May Learn to Think
—By Arthur Brisbane—

IN A PASTERBOARD BOX
in Kansas City, with hot water bottles around it, lies a small manly human being weighing exactly one pound. It still alive, he will be three days old when you read this. Doctors think he will live.

The smallest baby, born to poor, somewhat undernourished parents, has extraordinary vitality and absorbs liquid from an endoprep-er.

All mothers will be interested in the child. All Wall Street will say "It reminds you of recent dividends and values."

The Democratic party has selected for keynote Senator Alton W. Barkley of Kentucky, its temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention, he will keynote eloquently.

The next question is what will the "keynote" be? "I want a don't," is not a convincing keynote. Democrats thus far do not seem inclined on any other.

It seems strange that a national situation with so many complications should not have developed some one definite plan.

Do you know of any plan that Democrats have in mind, or Republicans, either?

In the General Electric plant at Schenectady yesterday a small, wire-haired terrier barked into a microphone and barked and barked. Every time that he barked he was a surprised person. For his bark, having come around the world by way of Holland, Java, and the Pacific, came back and barked in his ear. Of course, he didn't know how far the bark had come, but to bark and have his bark return to him in a fraction of a second was enough to delight any terrier.

LONG KIDNAP POET WEEPS

QUEST IS A $100,000 LOVE TRIAL

Early Return of the Lindbergh Child Indicated by Activities at Hopewell

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS

1—Reports persisted in Hopewell, N. J., that the baby already had been recovered or was about to be returned. They had their foundation in the cheerfulness of Cal. Lindbergh and an air of optimism about the home.

2—The police chief of Hopewell was disappointed. A light burned in the nursery through the night. According to reports, the baby's special will had been ordered; another said the baby would be home today.

3—A man and a woman who appeared to hold great possibilities and commenting upon them, Charles T. Brown, Massachusetts State police head, who went to Trenton in connection with the kidnapping, expressed the belief the baby is being held ahead of a ransom.

4—Activities off the southern Massachusetts coast still appeared to hold great possibilities and commenting upon them, Charles T. Brown, Massachusetts State police head, who went to Trenton in connection with the kidnapping, expressed the belief the baby is being held ahead of a ransom.

5—Cost guard boats continued their vigil at a point five miles west by south of desolate No Man's Land. There has been at least one boat going to there since yesterday morning, giving rise to the belief that the kidnapping meeting place, Ralph Wood, caretaker of the island, reported that the Lindbergh plane flew over the island Sunday.

6—Two New Jersey State detectives were in Fall River on a mysterious mission, searching for a Fall River man with a criminal record. They visited Tiverton and East Providence.

7—John H. Curtis, Norfolk (Va.) negotiator, returned home today after a four-day absence. He refused to talk until he had conferred with his wife.

8—Naj, Schofield's moves in London were closely guarded. He is expected to go to Glasgow to interview relatives of Betty Goss, the baby's nurse, but not yet materialized.

At Waquoit, on Cape Cod, in the immediate region of the latest Lindbergh baby search, a white yacht landed a man and a woman and a baby carriage at dusk last night.

The man and woman, with the baby carriage, were seen to vanish into the woods in the direction of South Waquoit today, at a distance search taking in all summer camps, under the eye of State troopers from the Barnstable barracks.

This development—possibly of great significance in the case, possibly only another false clue—further charged the atmosphere of the local situation with electricity.

The indictments in part involve the Rensselaer Public Utilities Corporation, of which William L. Edison, son of the famous inventor, was formerly president. It was learned that Edison has offered to give all aid possible in the Suffolk county authorities.

COURT DRAMA IN TROPICAL SETTING

POLYGLOT JURY ASSURED FOR TRIAL

Efforts to Bar All but White Men on the Panel Fail; Defendants Calm in Court

By GILBERT PARKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Honolulu, April 6 (INS)—The defense of Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, American society matron charged with three compatriots with the "honor killing" of a native, will resist to the last ditch the prosecution's efforts to pledge jurymen not to consider "related phases of the case."

This announcement was made today by Clarence Darrow, gray-haired veteran, who heads the battery of lawyers seeking to save Mrs. Fortescue, her son-in-law, Lieut. Thomas H. Masie, and Albert B. Jones and E. J. Lord, naval enlisted men from life terms for slaying Joseph Kahanabawa.

Darrow made it plain that every effort will be made to bring into open court details of the attack of five half-castes, Mrs. Fortescue and daughter of Mrs. Fortescue and of Lieut. Masie.

Darrow said it is the responsibility of a jury that will seek to conduct the trial on the basis of the facts and not on extraneous issues.

The prosecution, headed by John C. Kelly, insisted from the outset of the case on Monday that it will seek to conduct the trial on the basis of the facts and not on extraneous issues.

Several times Darrow has cautiously lifted the curtain on the grim tropical drama sufficiently to reveal in a general way how he proposes to develop his defense.

The text of Richardson's report was made public today. The assistant attorney-general expressed fear that the Hawaiian people will "take sides" and that the trial will be "a case of racial antagonism, resentment and possible demonstrations should result."

He referred also to the prospective trial of the Masie case in the same light. He praised the banking, educational, religious and social welfare conditions in the islands.

Each side has used three persons to conduct the trial. The defense has 21 more with which to play a game of give and take in an effort to secure a favorable verdict.

The most significant passage of the Hawaiian constitution is that "no criminal trials shall be held by a jury of less than 12 members, and the jury shall be composed of Hawaiian citizens."

DETECTIVES ON HIS TRAIL FOR MANY WEEKS

Minister is Alleged to Have Posed as Actor to Make "Dates" on Subway

London, April 6 (INS)—Detectives who followed the alleged amours of the Rev. Harold Francis Davidson, 60, accused of improper conduct with girls, took the stand at his trial in consistory court today and told of adventures in subway trains and tea-shops.

The detectives were Christopher Beattie, Ralph Thole and Percy Butler. They interviewed women and girls and built up the case against Davidson.

Only two of the witness said: "She identified these two as Barbara Harris and Rose Ellis, adding 'others are suspected.'"

FOUGHT HER WAY. Beattie admitted that in interview, Miss Ellis gave her several names of money, ranging up to a pound, and also bought her several glasses of port wine.

Robert Oliver, counsel for the Bishop of Norfolk, the Rev. Davidson's superior, gave Beattie an opportunity to deny suggestions he had bribed Miss Ellis to make a false statement and drugged her with drink as she did not know what she was saying.

Thole testified he shadowed Davidson last July and October, saying he saw the actor once with Miss Harris and Miss Ellis.

They "visited respectable houses," he said.

Butler testified he followed Davidson for a week and witnessed quarrel between him and Miss Harris in Boston station.

"The girl tried to run away," he said. "The actor ran after her and caught her. They made it up."

"HOW? THE GIRLS?" On October 28, Butler said, he followed Davidson into a subway train en route to Charing Cross.

"They were apparently strangers," he witnessed said. "I heard the actor say he was an actor and had played in 'Charley's Aunt.' When the girls left he gave them his card and later he met Barbara Harris and took her to a theater on Piccadilly."

"The next day the actor took his daughter to Marlborough and introduced her to Barbara. Later he went to a licensed hotel. The proprietor greeted him with the word."

"Hello you old thief! Still getting the cash and how are all the girls?"

Replying to a question from the chairman, Butler said Davidson was wearing a circular collar on that occasion.

LIFE FIGHT GOES INTO 4TH DAY

Death still held vigil today with Bernice Ardito, 13, of 160 Putnam st., East Boston, as firemen continued their battle with oxygen and an inhalator against the advance of double lobar pneumonia.

The battle to save the girl's life went on in fourth day shortly before noon, with the firemen working in relay in the Ardito home under direction of Lieut. John Blakley of Ladder 31.

According to Dr. Praxagoras Seelsoe, the girl spent a fair night, as comfortable as could be expected with inhalator over her face.

"Blackie," a Belgian police dog, faces a court fight for his life in Washington. He is owned by H. R. Morine of Exchange st., and is a pet of the Morine children, but neighbors, including Mrs. Elizabeth C. Fletcher, claim he is vicious. They have petitioned Mayor Duane to have him removed.

MANY SWINGING TO ROOSEVELT, BACKERS SAY

By BERNARD A. DOHERTY

Counting thousands of votes to the Roosevelt camp from every section of the state, the supporters of the New York Governor, led by the apparently tireless Mayor Curley, continue pressing home their arguments with the usual non-formal meeting at 20 Court st. and rallies in the evening in these three cities.

Senior high school, Common at, Watertown, Hanks school, Main at, Waltham, Longfellow school, Broadway and Antrim at, Cambridge.

At enthusiastic meetings in Pea-body, Salem, Lynn and at the Dutch room, Hotel Touraine, where several hundred women members of patriotic societies waited until midnight, Mayor Curley went into the unemployment situation at considerable length giving graphic instances of numerous cases of misery that have come to his attention.

QUOTES JUSTICE BRANDEIS

Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the United States Supreme Court, it is said, has expressed the opinion in this single sentence:

"The people of the United States are now confronted with an emergency more serious than war."

"The unfortunate feature in connection with the entire situation, the mayor stresses, is the failure to recognize that not only an economic war is in progress in America, but the number of Americans engaged in the combat represent today almost the entire population."

He said that Congress is still considering, without action, the creation of a federal planning commission, to determine ways and means of regulating production and distribution so that in industrial war like the present one may not recur.

"Congress," he pointed out, "has made provision for sustaining the requirements of the financial interests of the bankers and the railroads, but with no corresponding worthwhile program through which relief may be afforded to the unemployed who daily trudge our streets, vainly seeking employment with neither hope nor prospects of success."

HITS ROOSEVELT FEES

It is all the more difficult, he declared, in the face of these facts, to understand why "those whom we have honored with election to office in this Commonwealth" should take part in a movement to give one individual whom the people have confidence in lead them out of the depression, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

When the opponents of Roosevelt joined in their effort to minimize Gov. Roosevelt from the presidential nomination, he said they overlooked the "important psychological element that enters into the final determination of this election, namely, empty promises and empty promises."

"Those coming back untroubled by the depression and believing themselves secure in their jobs," he said, "are living in a false paradise."

"Nobody knows when his or her turn will come next, be objects of public charity," he warned, "those of the public who are concerned in Boston have gone out of business and other style points found in higher priced dresses, Sizes 16 to 20-22 to 24."

HOWEVER FEELS LONGER FOR BABY'S REUNION WITH CHILD NEAR

CHILD'S RETURN EXPECTED TO COME SOON

Optimistic Air and Resumption of Milk Delivery Bear Out Rumor

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Correspondent.

Trenton, N. J., April 6 (INS)—Trust, electric speed, almost certain conviction the kidnapped Lindbergh baby would be restored today to its parents inflamed hopes of practically everyone working on the case.

This infectious optimism and the persistent rumor Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., through subterranean channels, had already been recovered from the abduction, followed a day and night of suppressed dramatic events in the hunt for the infant.

Strategic points in the quest for a day and night hummed with the excitement of a moment's sending secret code messages apparently designed for the kidnappers, emphasizing mysterious trips by sea and airplane around the southern Massachusetts coast, feverish activities in the home of Col. Lindbergh near Newswell, N. J.

The tenacious of expectation was heightened by a Newark police official who flatly asserted the world's most famous baby returned before sundown tonight.

AIR OF CHERFULNESS

Cherfulness seemed to pervade the home also. Lindbergh kept up his usual life since his son was stolen from his crib on March 3.

A special brand of milk for use of the baby was ordered delivered again to the home in the first time since shortly after the infant was carried into the light by the kidnappers.

Blaze again blazed from the nursery until dawn, although during the baby's absence so far, it was kept dark.

Plausibility was lent to the belief John H. Curtis, one of the Norfolk negotiators, may have been away on final negotiations to recover the baby by the answers his associate, Rear Admiral Guy L. Burgess, gave to the press.

News to Be Flashed on Baby's Recovery

However, April 6—When Baby Lindbergh is recovered the news will be flashed promptly, it was indicated. Friends of the family said it would be virtually impossible to keep such news secret. The recovery of the baby would make it apparent the child was back home.

Lindbergh himself, it was said, would have no reason for withholding such good news.

He who with the third member of the family, the Rev. H. Dodson Peacock, was in Newark, made inquiries.

His child already been restored to the parents, he was asked.

"I cannot answer that," he replied.

MORROW HOME MADE READY

In New Jersey, everything seemed to point to the baby would be back soon. The state police force at the Lakehurst station was reduced to skeleton staff.

Reports were that the Englishwood, 20, home of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother of Mrs. Lindbergh, was in readiness to receive the child. It has been generally held he would be taken back to the Lindbergh home if either Lindbergh or any of his servants obtained the infant.

Col. Schwarzkopf professed indifference to developments as a result of the efforts made by Lindbergh or those working for him.

He denied reports the Winthrop, Col. police identified Harry Mack, a prisoner, as a friend of Henry "Red" Johnson, father of Betty Gow, nurse of the vanished child.

ANOTHER "JAFIE" MESSAGE

In his late bulletin he said the child's fingerprints were received by Scotland Yard and found to be of persons having no criminal records, a matter he mentioned earlier, referred to the "servants in the Lindbergh home."

He also said no request was received to withdraw the guard about the Lindbergh home.

There was another "Jafie" message in the public notice of a morning newspaper today. These reportedly emanated from a telephone connected with the search for the baby.

"What is your friend? Please be directed, Jafie."

No official report is known to have come from Maj. Charles H. Schoeffel of the State Police in Great Britain in connection with the Lindbergh case.

Maj. Schoeffel Again Visits Scotland Yard

London, April 6 (INS)—Maj. Charles H. Schoeffel of the New Jersey state police paid another visit to Scotland Yard today.

The major took breakfast in his hotel room, refusing to see interviews or to answer inquiries by calls. He spent some time reading his large batch of mail.

REUNION WITH CHILD NEAR

COL. LINDBERGH

Col. Lindbergh is expected to see his son today.

land in at Wauquoit just before midnight when the tide was at flood and lay off some distance from the beach while the men and woman and the baby carriage were rowed ashore in a tender.

They were observed by John Jones, Wauquoit fisherman, and his son, who believed there was some significance in the happening and remained unobserved at a point near the beach.

After the tender landed the man and woman and the carriage it was rowed back to the yacht which immediately put out into the sound, the elder Jones said.

The man and woman pushed the carriage from the wood fringed beach into an underbrush trail through sand, and the Joneses attempted to follow. They followed the trail some distance into the Pinehurst area of South Massapequa before they lost it in the dark.

They reported to police, Pinehurst officers and three troopers joined in the search today. Trooper Chief William A. Mercer of Massapequa directed the hunt in his vicinity. There are many isolated summer camps and cranberry farms in the district, all of which, he said, will be visited.

ONLY SHORT TRIP

The scene of the landing was close to Popponesset. It is only a short water trip from there across Nantuxet Sound, through the reach between Martha's Vineyard and Nantuxet to the point five miles south of Wauquoit.

Man's Land, under secret guard, continued today to keep some sort of rendezvous.

A report that a tender containing two suspicious characters and a baby was seen in the vicinity of Washington, N. J., was investigated, the bulletin disclosed, but the care and the occupants were isolated and their actions fully accounted for.

A woman who said she had had this information talked at length with Col. Lindbergh, but just at the beginning to believe he might pay some visit to the island, he said.

In regard to published reports that a light had been burning in the nursery of the Lindbergh home, Col. Schwarzkopf bulletined: "No lights have been burned under any unusual circumstances in the nursery and there are no circumstances of any significance in this connection."

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a domestic servant, and the rest are advertised daily in the first column.

Oldest Graduate of Harvard Observes 91st Birthday

New York, April 6 (AP)—Harvard's oldest graduate, a Dickinson figure with mustache, who did not go down to his Brooklyn law office today.

He was at his home, 38 Schenectady st., in the house where he has lived for 45 years, "celebrating ice cream on my 91st birthday," he always celebrate that way.

His 85-year-old wife was hurrying back and forth between her kitchen and the "front room," receiving the guests who came to call on Frederick Cobb.

It was the first time since his 86th birthday that Cobb had missed spending the morning at his office.

Man's Land. They traveled together and upon reaching the destroyer Madrugada put about and returned across the bay.

Although it could not be verified, a report had gained wide credence that the Navy Department has issued blanket authorization to take the responsibility for boarding any vessel of foreign registry on the high seas, in the event such a vessel should occur.

The vessel in question is believed to be outside the 12-mile limit, five miles south, southwest of Coney Island and 35 miles from City Island. It is believed the 36-foot motor boat, Nellie, owned since Sunday by a woman, is under the command of a man who usually lies outside the limit of Chesapeake Bay.

NEGOTIATOR ABOARD

Coast guard officials denied their vessels were engaged in aiding the baby hunt, saying the ships were being sent out on regular patrol, the annual construction of vessels in the area, however, led to persistent belief they were engaged in aiding the search.

According to reliable information the man sought Sunday is aboard the Nellie acting as representative for the Lindbergh negotiators. He is acquainted with Admiral Burgess, having served in the navy under him.

The destroyer and blimpet four on the Sunday trip were also reported to have been headed over to the kidnappers.

A report that Customs Officer William J. Hendrick was absent from New Bedford on a mission connected with the case was denied by Thomas F. Finnegan, inspector in charge in the district.

VETERANS ARE ON GUARD IN ST. JOHN'S

St. John's, N. F., April 6 (INS)—Formal resignation of Premier Sir Richard Squires and his Cabinet had not yet been tendered to the governor of this dominion today, but such action was expected momentarily as result of the riot here yesterday.

Meanwhile, World War veterans patrolled the streets, preventing any friendly police on their beats. All shops and banks resumed business.

It was said Sir Richard did not receive serious injuries from the rioting he got last night in escaping to his residence from the besieged House of Assembly, where he was held virtually a prisoner by a mob of 10,000 civilians.

The Premier, whose decision to resign was announced last night from the Assembly steps, was in London. About the residence a heavy patrol of ex-service men was established to guard the entrance.

It is expected the dominion will resist to national government demands by F. C. Alderdice, present Opposition leader.

The outbreak, in which stones were hurled, windows smashed and many persons injured, was the culmination of months of unemployment distress and dissatisfaction with the government policy.

True to Type SILENCE, NOT TALK, REAL SIGNAL OF DANGER By GILBERT SELDES

I SUGGESTED A FEW DAYS AGO that managers of candidates, and even, perhaps, the candidates themselves, might learn a great deal from the silence which greets the appearance of prominent men when their images appear on the screen. They can, of course, learn something from applause. In New York, for instance, no amount of criticism and investigation seems to diminish the affection of the public for Mayor Walker; he is the only public man who is always cheered on the screen. The rest are considered mere "fillers" between shots of the navy steaming on one of its mysterious and playful errands and pictures of three-legged calves.

An Example

In Louis Adamic's "Laughing in the Jungle" there is a story of silence which tacticians ought to study. It concerns Jack Kippis, one of the leaders of the I. W. W. in Seattle, known there as the "Assassin" of Woodrow Wilson. In 1919 Wilson toured the country in behalf of the League of Nations and Ole Hanson was the highly advertised Mayor of Seattle. A parade was scheduled in honor of the President. Mr. Adamic tells the story as Kippis gave it to him:

"There were ten or twenty blocks of cheering maniacs. Then, all of a sudden, Wilson came to a block where everything was quiet. Hundreds of grimy workmen, interspersed with women, stood still and silent on both sides of the street. Not a cheer, not a sound, not a move. Most of the men didn't even look at him; some of them, of course, couldn't resist giving him the once-over, but everybody was instructed to look past him. Only a couple of kids were pushing and yelling here and there, which made the Wobblies' silence and immobility even more terrible.

"He stood in the machine. He smiled as he came to our block. Then the smile went off his face—like that. He knew that we were I. W. W.'s. I guess, but he didn't know what to make of it. He looked flustered. Back there the mob had cheered him till you couldn't hear the music; here these dirty bum did even more, but stood like statues, and among them were dozens of ex-soldiers.

Wilson Sings

"He continued to stand in the car, but it was obvious that he wanted to sit down. He looked stern. His frame looked limp and bunched up. The hand holding his tall hat hung by his side. His face looked old and weary.

"The music behind now sounded clear and awful. A second before it couldn't be heard for the mob's noise, now you heard nothing but music and the roar of the cop's motorcycles.

"The car moved on—slowly. Then there was another block of ill-silent Wobblies in denim overalls, their arms crossed on their chests, printed barbed wire on their hats and caps, most of them looking at Wilson, but straight ahead, past him. Thousands of men. Block after block—live blocks.

"It was dramatic as hell, believe me.

"Beyond the Wobblies blocks there were more cheering people. Wilson didn't smile and again. He merely waved his hand and led weakly to the mob.

"The next day the President sent a delegation of the Wobblies to convey their petition, and a few weeks later began the illness to which he eventually succumbed.

When Moralists Moan

The Italian historian, Ferrero, once suggested that we take the wrong measure of the degeneracy and wickedness of certain eras in Roman history. In brief, his idea is that the periods against which the moralists rage are probably not as vicious as those in which not even a voice is raised in protest. So long as people are attacking vice, some virtue exists. It is silence that is really dangerous.

The same thing may be true about economic conditions. So long as there is a violent protest, the country may be safe. It is the silence of despair that is dangerous.

It is interesting to find Josef Hofmann, the pianist, and Mr. Justice Brandeis of the Supreme Court, supporting one another, and music and law-making reduced to common terms. The most recent dissenting opinion of Mr. Brandeis held that the State might demand a certificate of public necessity before allowing an industry to establish itself. That is to say, it might be against public policy to allow twenty people to start twenty new ice companies when enough ice companies already exist.

Less Musicians

Mr. Hofmann thinks that musicians also should be required to show a certificate, not of public necessity which might be difficult, but of exceptional merit. He wishes that mediocre players and singers were not encouraged with the delusive hope of becoming great soloists. For them, he says, music may not be a profession but starvation.

To those who have suffered not from being but from being near musicians of the second order, this is an attractive proposal. But it should not be too heartily embraced. It might be extended to the other arts—to writing, for instance.

MISS PORTER IS RID OF VOLPE

Miss Alice G. Porter of Medford, Radcliffe graduate and former Boston teacher, today won her freedom from guardianship by a decision of Judge Wilford Gray in Middlesex Superior Court.

Miss Porter, who is 33, is now free to push her civil suit for $200,000 against the estate of her cousin, Alan G. Hooker, former Boston note-broker, who she says promised to marry her and leave her all his money.

It was her second victory. Previously in probate court Judge Campbell had freed her from a temporary guardianship. Judge Gray's decision removes her from the care of her guardian ad litem, Frank G. Volpe, assistant district attorney.

"It is unfortunate," said Judge Gray, "the medical testimony seems to be influenced by the side for which the alleged happens to be testifying."

"Some doctors said she was sane, others said she was insane. I find there is evidence of eccentricity, but that is not sufficient to warrant continuance of the guardianship at present."

REFRIGERATOR ON AUTO TRUCK

Something new in the development of the automobile truck, as well as in the field of refrigeration, is being shown at the General Motors national exhibit, now running in the exposition hall of Boston Garden. It is a refrigerated truck built on a novel principle. The innovation is demonstrated by two trucks equipped with Frigidaire units.

The new development, it is claimed, forecasts a radical change in the method of transporting perishable foods. While the truck is on the road, the refrigerating machine is driven from the truck engine. It is a purely mechanical operation, involving no electrical drive. While the truck is in the garage, the Frigidaire unit is operated electrically and is automatically being connected up with an electric motor on the premises.

The units on display are both ice cream trucks. Chevrolet owned and operated by H. P. Hood & Sons, and a G. M. truck owned by the Economy Grocery Stores. These are the only concerns in this section thus equipped.

The refrigerating apparatus is capable of running the truck storage body down to 20 degrees below zero. One great advantage claimed

SWEETS DRAW DOWNEY

An ice cream soda—that's what drew Morton Downey, the famous radio tenor, to Glitch's. Seated before a sparkling glass fairy cone with luscious chocolate soda, in which a tempting lump of velvety smooth ice cream was doing somersaults before his eager spoon...

That's how a Glitch official found and recognized the famous Broadway star, Morton.

For the new system is that constant, varying temperature can be maintained without difficulty, and without replenishing ice buckets.

The experimental work was carried out by engineers from the Frigidaire and the truck division of General Motors. The success is evidenced by the fact that the Hood people have placed repeat orders.

HOOVER SEES 30,000 MARCH

Washington, April 6 (AP)—The ceremonial avenue of the capital were cleared today for the marching of 30,000 men, in commemoration of America's entry into the World War 13 years ago.

The exercises, in which President Hoover himself arranged to take part as chief reviewing officer, marked the annual "army day" combining this year with the bicentennial celebration of Washington's birth.

At a point by the Washington monument the President's reviewing stand was erected along the recently-widened Constitution avenue. Secretary Hurley, Gen. John J. Pershing and Brig. Gen. John Ross Davidson were among the reviewers.

AMOSKEAG MAY SHUT ALL MILLS

Manchester, N. H., April 6—Gates were closed against workers today in four Amoskeag mills as the arrival of Frederic C. Dumaine, treasurer of the corporation, was awaited.

While mill officials denied the lockouts were reprisal moves for the vote of the workers last week against a reduced wage scale, it was rumored today that Dumaine's arrival would be followed by a proposal for a complete shutdown.

STAGED AFTER SEEMS IS ABSORBED

New York, April 6.—A New York stock market rally was staged on the New York Stock Exchange today after what may be considered the climactic selling which usually appears at the end of a long decline, had been absorbed.

The start of improving prices came along with news of the Treasury's opposition to a proposed tax on stock transfers and dividends.

Urgent selling in the first half hour depressed prominent issues 1 to 3 points, and the market as a whole went into new low ground at the sixth successive session.

PRESSURE IS RELAXED

Pressure relaxed thereafter, and a slow recovery set in which not only cancelled most of the loss, but also brought numerous gains of fractions to a point by early afternoon.

After more than recovering early losses of 1 to 3 points the market dipped to a heavy closing.

But, the stock market of the day, which was also a new bear market minimum, fell only a half hour, more than a point.

Not long after the close of the day appeared in American Telephone and Telegraph, Consolidated Gas, American Can, Consolidated Chemical and Du Pont. Transactions approximated 1,000 shares.

DIG EARLY TURNOVER

Some 50,000 shares unchanged in the first half hour. Favorable overnight news enhanced the market, and the closing half hour saw a sharp recovery.

The overnight news which Chicago bankers were conferring with a view to reorganizing Middle West utilities may have had an adverse effect during the early trading.

The problems of the insolvent companies had been under consideration for some time.

Bankers felt that there was considerable sympathetic and perhaps unreasonable selling in utility stocks of other groups, as a result of local problems. The drop in utility stocks had been predicted at least at two of the leading investment trusts, and the closing half hour saw a sharp recovery.

A Krugger securities firm, which had low levels on the fraud charges from Stockholm, Krugger & Tuttle, had a sharp recovery.

The market was extremely weak, losses running over 10 points.

$1 IN 10 YEAR

New York, April 6 (AP)—American Tobacco Company paid its president, George W. Hill, more than $100,000 for 1931.

This was disclosed in a report filed by the company in Federal court here. The documents are in reply to a stockholder's suit against the company, which was filed by Field Rogers, who recently obtained a temporary injunction against the company.

Mr. Hill's cash compensation consisted of $60,000 salary and cash bonus of $40,000, totaling $100,000.

American Tobacco's net profit last year was $4,180,741, a record. Under the bonus plan, in any year when the company's net profit exceeded $1,200,000 the president was to receive 2 1/2 per cent of such excess.

Orders for Steel Seen as Delayed

New York, April 6 (AP)—While conditions still seem to favor some rise in steel production, it is probable, the orders that are being depended upon to bring about such improvement have been delayed. Iron Age and Engr.

Regarding expected business from the Ford Motor Co. Iron Age comments that volume production unlikely before May 1, in which case steel input production is barely holding at 22 per cent, which was last week's rate.

Nearby Copper Is at 5 1/2 Cts a Lb.

New York, April 6 (AP)—Bringing their price in line with the spot price of 6 cents a pound, the Chicago market for copper is willing to sell copper for nearly 5 1/2 cents a pound.

Chicago, today, foreign sales of about 1,000,000 pounds were negotiated early today.

Steel Merger Plan Rumors Are Revived

New York, April 6 (AP)—Youngstown Steel & Tube cannot be confirmed officially in Wall Street, but informed circles said today a revival of the plan was expected.
